BANK SUPERVISORY MATTER -- Update on Citigroup Inc., New York, New York.

Di	S	CU	SS	ed.
June	1	7,	20	09.

At its meeting on June 5, 2009, the Board had discussed the response by Citigroup Inc. (Citigroup), New York, New York, to the results of the Supervisory Capital Assessment Program, a "stress test" of the nineteen largest bank holding companies by the federal bank regulatory agencies. Today, staff from the Board and the Federal Reserve Bank of New York updated Board members on the steps proposed by Citigroup to improve its capital structure and operations. Citigroup would (1) complete an exchange of preferred securities for common shares; (2) review senior management and augment current management with executives who have commercial banking experience; and (3) closely evaluate the execution of its capital plan, particularly those portions involving divestitures, liquidity enhancements, and improvements in risk management. Board members requested additional information about the timelines for completing these steps and measures to be used by supervisory staff to assess Citigroup's performance in each area.

In the ensuing discussion, Board members generally agreed that it was important for the preferred-for-common exchange to proceed as planned. Board members also discussed whether Citigroup's proposed efforts were sufficient to address supervisory concerns. It was pointed out that Citigroup appeared to lack a sense of urgency about the need to have more-specific plans for addressing several areas, including (1) the addition of senior managers and directors who have expertise and experience in risk management and in commercial lending and other key business lines; (2) the divestiture of core assets, if necessary, to raise capital or reduce the size of the organization; and (3) the need for resources to resolve potential operational and liquidity problems while carrying out its reform efforts. Board members also commented on the possibility of winding down Citigroup's operations if the company's efforts were unsuccessful. In addition, it was noted that Citigroup's responsiveness to input from, and its willingness to work cooperatively with, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) needed to improve without delay.

At the conclusion of the discussion, it was understood that staff would discuss any shared supervisory concerns with the FDIC and convey those concerns to Citigroup in a manner that reflected today's discussion. It was also understood that staff would inform the Board of further developments concerning Citigroup.

Participating in this discussion: Chairman Bernanke, Vice Chairman Kohn, and Governors Warsh, Duke, and Tarullo.
