Financial Crisis Inquiry Commission ("Commission")

Dear Mr. Borgers:

As you know, we represent Citigroup Inc. ("Citi" or the "Company") in connection with its responses to the Commission's requests for documents and information, including Bob Hinkley's October 18, 2010 e-mail request (the "October 18 Request") and questions you posed during a conference call with my colleague Susanna Buergel on October 14, 2010 (the "October 14 Call").

During the October 14 Call, I understand that you and your colleagues from the Commission expressed an interest in obtaining four categories of information. First, you asked what Citi paid for the pool of New Century-originated mortgage loans that collateralized CMLTI 2006-NC2. We understand that Citi paid $970,969,301.29 for this pool. Second, you asked how long Citi held this pool of loans prior to securitization. In response to this inquiry, we understand that Citi purchased these whole loans on August 29, 2006 and CMLTI 2006-NC2 closed on September 28, 2006. Third, you asked us to quantify the aggregate volume of bonds sold by CGMI in connection with CMLTI 2006-NC2. We understand that the total amount of bonds Citi sold at issuance was $910,611,220. Finally, you requested that we identify the initial purchasers of certain classes of bonds associated with CMLTI 2006-NC2. In response to that request, Citi states that, according to its records, the initial purchasers were as follows:

In addition, Citi provides the following responses to the numbered questions posed in the October 18 Request.

- Question 2. Citi confirms that the documents bearing control numbers CITI-FCIC 122231 through 122232 came from due diligence vendor 406 Partners.
- Question 3. Citi states that loans may be removed from a pool for reasons other than the fact that they were classified as event level 3. For example, loans may be prepaid in full while due diligence is ongoing, or removed from the pool by the seller, or flagged by a due diligence vendor for reasons outside the scope of the standard credit, compliance and valuation reviews.
- Question 4. Citi confirms that a credit due diligence review was not performed with respect to some of the funded loans in this pool, and a blank entry in the “COMPLIANCE EVENT LEVEL” column in the due diligence report bearing control number CITI-FCIC 122232 indicates that a credit review was not performed on a particular loan.
- Question 6. Records of the process by which Citi selected the due diligence sample for this transaction are not readily available. As a general matter, however, Citi selected due diligence samples based on adverse selection criteria or a combination of adverse selection criteria and random criteria. Also as a general matter, the loan seller would not have had any input regarding Citi’s sample size or limiting the amount of due diligence that Citi could perform.
- Question 7. Citi responds that it was not a due diligence vendor’s role to declare loans as “eligible” or “ineligible” for securitization. In any case, Citi notes that the funded loan report provided to the Commission does not reflect any loans classified as event level 3, which is the classification typically associated with a loan that Citi might reject.
- We are still reviewing questions 1 and 5 and hope to provide responses promptly.
